

WMSTU 232

Introduction to Women and Gender Studies

3 Credit Hours

This course addresses the relationship between biological sex and the construction of gendered identities. As a result, this course deals directly with this relationship, as well as the historical conditions that give rise to this relationship, by examining writings about women and men and femininity and masculinity, from a range of disciplines that include the cultural, the sociological and the anthropological. Offered fall.

WMSTU 260

Special Topics

3 Credit Hours

Topics for this course will vary.

WMSTU 360

Special Topics

3 Credit Hours

Topics for this course will vary.